Facebook: How it can work for you.

How Facebook can work for you in school, work, or your personal life.
1. Before you can use Facebook you must either signup or login if you have an account.
2. Once you have created an account or logged in you can start using Facebook.
3. At this point you may want to adjust your privacy settings (it is suggested that you do so).
4. You can send friend requests at this point if you wish.
A college or university can set up a facebook page in order to attract new students or to keep current students and faculty members aware of what’s going on with the school. Students can find out information about their school or a professor for one of their courses. Look at the next figure on the following page.
A business can also use facebook to advertise and gain more customers via facebook.

You can also use Facebook to keep in touch with friends and family as well.
You can chat via im, email, or posting on someone’s wall just like in the next figure.

Another thing that you can do is post videos onto your profile some examples are in the next few pictures.
