This First Year Seminar brings together two content areas: a general discussion of Latina/os in the United States and their unequal access and use of Information and Communication Technologies, or the “Digital Divide.” Through class discussions and readings, students learn about Latina/o populations in the United States, but also about challenges that face their use of different technologies in the 21st century.

Assignment: In groups, students will create a digital “pitch” presentation that introduces an App that will specifically address a challenge experienced disproportionately by the Latina/o community. Each group is provided with a theme and must create the digital presentation with a narration. The App proposals include a discussion of the problem the App addresses, the target audience, and a solution.
