Just what keeps a painter painting over the decades? Passion? Terror? Obsession? Hunger for beauty? Thirst for meaning? Curiosity? Perhaps any of these and sometimes all of them.

Daniel do Amaral was born in Brazil and has lived in Germany and Japan and the United States. He paints, photographs, makes collages and creates sculptures that have been exhibited in four countries. In "Momentum", opening at the John Jay College Gallery on January 28, 2010, do Amaral tells us how he keeps moving; what keeps him painting. Always with the eye of someone trained in meditation and the martial art of Aikido, do Amaral's mixed media images invite and challenge the viewer to consider the merits of self-observation.
