Professor Olivera Jokic is organizing a program that will take up to 15 students to Serbia, a country in central Europe, during the 2013 summer session.English Matters 5.2

Jessica Paiz has the opportunity to be one of the 15 students. “It's an honor to be chosen by Professor Jokic,” she said. “I'm very thrilled to be able to take part in this program.”

The program, which runs from May 25 to June 12, will allow the students to experience Serbian culture, language, and history. They will stay in Belgrade, the capital city of Serbia, and visit various sites of cultural and historical significance.

The students will have the opportunity to meet with Serbian scholars and participate in language immersion activities. They will also attend cultural events and performances, such as traditional Serbian music and dance. The program will conclude with a trip to the beautiful city of Novi Sad, known for its vibrant arts scene and stunning scenery.

“I can't wait to see what life is like in Serbia,” said Paiz. “It's going to be an amazing opportunity to learn about a country and a culture that is so different from my own.”

The program is open to all students with an interest in Slavic studies. Students will be expected to participate in regular activities, such as language classes and cultural excursions, and to submit reflective journals about their experiences.

“Studying abroad is a fantastic way to learn about another culture and to broaden your perspective,” said professor Jokic. “This program will provide our students with a unique opportunity to experience Serbia firsthand.”
