The Interdisciplinary Studies Program

ISP 335:01 and 02: Violence in the Pursuit of Justice

Humanity and Inhumanity

Spring 2015, Mondays 11:00-1:30 or 5:40-8:10

The twentieth century was one of the most brutal in history. Developments such as World War I, the Holocaust, Hitler and Nazism, the Stalinist terror, and genocides in Africa and Asia testify to the horrors of this period. In this course we will emphasize perspectives from philosophy, psychology, and history to examine what enables this human brutality and also ways that we might fight against such brutality today.

Professors Dennis Sherman and Amie MacDonald
