EMPLOYMENT HISTORY

President, John Jay College of Criminal Justice (CUNY): 2004 to present.

Under his leadership, John Jay College:

- Was transformed into a senior college offering a rigorous undergraduate liberal arts program.
- Joined the prestigious Macaulay Honors College of CUNY.
- Increased freshman enrollment by half and full time faculty by one third.
- Tripled its external funding for faculty research.
- Expanded its masters programs to eleven and now houses two nationally recognized doctoral programs.
- Launched John Jay Online and completed its first capital campaign for $50 million.

Senior Fellow, The Urban Institute, Justice Policy Center: 2000 to 2004. Senior Fellow at the Urban Institute, a nonpartisan research and policy organization. Affiliated with the new Justice Policy Center created by the Institute to develop research on issues of safety, crime and the administration of justice. Specifically:

- Raised approximately $18 million to launch a national program of research and policy development on the issue of prisoner reentry.
- Led the design of Returning Home: Understanding the Challenges of Prisoner Reentry, the first multi-state longitudinal study of prisoner reentry.

- Created the Reentry Roundtable, a group of nationally prominent researchers, policy makers, practitioners, community leaders and former prisoners dedicated to developing new thinking on sentencing, incarceration, and reentry.
- Convened forum at the National Press Club to develop better understanding of the recent crime decline in America.
- Developed an initiative with the Harvard Civil Rights Project to explore the nexus between race, crime, communities and civil rights.
- Under grant from Department of State, worked with police executives, scholars, and community representatives from the U.S. and Northern Ireland to promote police reforms in Northern Ireland following the Good Friday accords.
- Participated in academic workshops in South Africa, Italy, and the United Kingdom on comparative perspectives on crime control policy, policing reform, prisoner reintegration, and crime measurement.
- Created interdisciplinary, cross-Center committees on (1) research on youth development and (2) research on crime and justice in the District of Columbia.

Director, National Institute of Justice, Department of Justice: 1994-2000. Nominated by President Clinton and confirmed by the U.S. Senate to serve as Director of the National Institute of Justice, the research arm of the Department of Justice. Managed growth of NIJ from an annual budget of $25 million to $120 million, and from 40 employees to 120 employees. Created a broad scientific agenda including national evaluations of federal crime initiatives, longitudinal studies of the nexus between community capacity and criminal behavior, programmatic evaluations of anti-crime interventions, advancement of DNA and other forensic sciences, development of law enforcement technologies, and research on counter-terrorism strategies. Created the Arrestee Drug Abuse Monitoring (ADAM) program, a national research infrastructure to assess crime patterns, track trends in drug use, and support local crime control strategies. Established the NIJ International Center to support comparative research and study transnational crime. Forged partnerships with other federal research institutes, international research centers, and federal agencies including the departments of Defense, Treasury, Health and Human Services, Education, and Housing and Urban Development.

Deputy Commissioner, Legal Matters, New York City Police Department: 1990-1994. Served as General Counsel to the Police Department, advisor to Police Commissioners Brown, Kelly and Bratton, and member of the Department's Executive Staff. Oversaw three departmental units: the Legal Bureau, a 100- person unit that provides legal services to the Department on all criminal and civil matters; the License Division, a 200- person unit that administers pistol and firearm licenses in New York City; the Criminal Justice Bureau, a 1400- person unit that serves as liaison between the Police Department and the agencies of New York City's criminal justice system. Created the Civil Enforcement Initiative, a program that combined civil and criminal remedies to address local crime conditions. This initiative received the Innovations in Government Award in 1995 from the Ford Foundation and Kennedy School of Government. Drafted legislation banning assault rifles and oversaw its implementation. Instituted a system of performance indicators to track the arrest to arraignment process, bringing average times from 42 hours to less than 24 hours and saving millions of dollars in new arrest overtime. At the request of Schools Chancellor Joseph Fernandez, chaired a Panel on School Safety (with Dr. Gerald Lynch and Prof. Ellen Schall) that recommended structural reforms in the Board of Education's approach to school safety.

Chief Counsel, Subcommittee on Criminal Justice of the House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary: 1990. As Chief Counsel to Subcommittee chaired by Rep. Charles E. Schumer, developed new agenda for oversight hearings and legislative initiatives on criminal justice issues.

Special Advisor to the Mayor, City of New York: 1986-1989. Generally, advised Mayor Edward I. Koch and members of mayoral staff on emerging issues on a daily basis, acted as Mayor's liaison to city agencies, prepared position papers, drafted articles and undertook special projects. Specifically: conducted management and legal review of the City Human Rights Commission; served as Mayor's liaison to the Charter Revision Commission and chaired Interagency Charter Revision Working Group; coordinated City's implementation of federal immigration legalization program; developed recruitment and training programs (Mayor's Corps of Engineers, LaGuardia Fellowship Program); coordinated City's response to Commission on Hispanic Concerns and Commission on Black New Yorkers; formed Commission to establish the High School Institute for Law and Justice at the Martin Luther King, Jr. High School; established Mayor's Advisory Council on Community Relations following the racial attack in Howard Beach; established Public/Private School Partnership; served on Chancellor's Steering Committee on University Collaboratives. As interim Coordinator of the Mayor's Office of Educational Services, established the Commission on Early Childhood Education; was responsible for Project Giant Step and the Adult Literacy Initiative; and served as Mayor's liaison to the Board of Education and the City University of New York.

Special Counsel to the First Deputy Mayor and Assistant Director for Law Enforcement Services, Mayor's Office of Operations: 1986. On staff of First Deputy Mayor Stanley Brezenoff, with oversight responsibilities for Departments of Police, Corrections, Probation, Sanitation, Fire, Consumer Affairs, and Juvenile Justice. Acted as representative of First Deputy Mayor in assessing, developing and implementing City policy in these agencies.

Special Counsel to the Police Commissioner, New York City Police Department: 1984-1986. Served as legal and general policy advisor to Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward. Developed new recruitment program, the Police Cadet Corps, a successful mayoral initiative to attract more college-educated, highly-motivated, and racially diverse candidates as police officers. Developed policy recommendations and research agenda for the Civilian Complaint Review Board. Acted as liaison to mayoral Commission on Police Management and Personnel Policy, chaired by John Zuccotti. Acted as general advisor on policy matters, representing the Police Commissioner as his liaison to City Hall, City Council, other agencies, and parties to litigation. Generally served as writer and editor of Commissioner's prepared remarks and other written communications.

Law Clerk to Judge Ruth Bader Ginsburg: U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit: 1982-1983.

Consultant, New York City Board of Correction: 1979-1982. Consulted on development of classification systems for pretrial detainees.

Executive Director, New York City Criminal Justice Agency: 1977-1979. Director of 200-employee, citywide public benefit corporation under $3.5 million contract with New York City to conduct criminal justice research, develop experimental programs, and provide information to assist in pretrial decision-making.

Executive Director, Victim/Witness Assistance Project to the Vera Institute of Justice: 1975-1977. Director of $1 million federal demonstration project providing services to crime victims and prosecution witnesses and conducting research on the victim's role in the criminal justice system.

Pretrial Services Agency of the Vera Institute of Justice: 1973-1975. Held a variety of management and supervisory positions in agency conducting criminal justice research and promoting bail reform.

Legal Services Assistant, Legal Aid Society: 1971-1973. Prepared cases for attorneys defending the indigent in criminal prosecutions in the Manhattan and Bronx Criminal Courts.
